Pavidra Ambiganithy is a first year student in Health Science at UOIT. Her poem, Forget-Me-Not, was inspired by the change that was happening around her. Pavidra previously had a poem, White Walls, published in Young Voices as well.

“I’m hoping to write more poems, but for now I definitely hope you enjoy this one.” - Pavidra Ambiganithy.

Forget-Me-Not

Do you remember me my friend?
Do you remember me?

That one time we danced with glee.
The times we played hide and seek.

Do you remember me now my friend?
I remember thee.

In every letter I write,
In everyone I see,
In every breath I take......

Don't forget me my friend.
I won't forget thee.

As I lay beneath the ground,
underneath the shadow of a tree,
I won't forget you my friend.
Don't forget me.
